Ukraine VBS-2011

In Isaiah 58:11 it says, "The LORD will guide you always; He will satisfy your needs in a sun-scorched land and will strengthen your frame. You will be like a well-watered garden, like a spring whose waters never fail." The time I spent in Ukraine was a wonderful experience. Their rich culture is filled with a history much longer than our own. Some of the conditions there, however, were not so wonderful. The village of Ivanivka, where I taught VBS, had no running water. Even if there was running water, we were told not to drink it because it was unsanitary. Midsummer on Ukrainian farms can be extremely hot. Day after day the sun sapped me of my energy. After nine days, I was feeling dehydrated. But what a great comfort Isaiah was to me! Not only did I know that God was going to keep me alive throughout my stay but he would also guide me through this unknown land and keep me safe. An even better comfort was that God was watering my soul with the high quality water of His Word. Seeing our Ukrainian brothers and sisters in Christ rejoicing in the same great news that we Americans rejoice in was such a great encouragement for me as a first year MLC pastor-track student. My experience over there has excited me to become a pastor. I don't think I am capable of ever forgetting my experience in Ukraine or the friends I have made there. I'm so happy I was able to serve God in this way.

I want to thank Thoughts of Faith once again for this opportunity. When I signed up for Project Timothy at Luther Prep, I specifically did not sign up to go overseas because I wasn't sure I could handle it. Imagine my surprise when I read that I would be going to Ukraine! Clearly God thought I could handle it. He certainly has a plan and a reason for doing everything in our lives. It reminds me of Moses when he was called by God to stand up to Pharaoh and lead the Israelites. He didn't think he could do it. This experience has given me a new perspective on life. I think the way it affected me the

Educational Opportunities Abound!

When school's in session, minds are stretching. At least teachers hope that their students' minds are expanding as new concepts are grasped, new facts are absorbed, new questions are asked, new ways of understanding are formulated.

Education is all about growth. At Thoughts of Faith we're not only interested in the mental, physical and emotional growth of those we serve, but we are primarily concerned with their spiritual growth. So we're happy to share information in this newsletter about recent Christian education opportunities among our affiliates.

- In Ukraine, another successful program of Vacation Bible School was conducted, linking willing US volunteer teachers with children in rural villages and busy cities. St. Sophia Seminary is up and running, too.
- In Czech Republic, Martin Luther School is in session with over 200 students. VBS was held for the first time in Plzen this summer, with Jenni Petersen and volunteers from Wisconsin in charge. Also, we welcome Harold and Jeanne Schewe as our "volunteer English teachers" in Plzen for September through November.

- In Latvia, confirmation classes for youth and adults are ongoing. We're grateful to God for the privilege of teaching Christian doctrine to our students. We're doing our best to help them grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ (2 Peter 3:18a). Let's join in a prayer that God would bless our Sunday Schools, Lutheran Elementary and High Schools, our Colleges and Seminaries – here in the US and among our friends in eastern Europe!

The Only Story that Matters

Bathrooms, cars, paved roads, the ability to communicate, toys, readily available drinking water, the truth that God's Holy Christian Church is a worldwide one—perhaps too many of us have taken these things for granted. The nine days we spent in the village of Ivanivka allowed us to see our blessings at home more clearly, but we are not the only or even the favored recipients of God's goodness. This trip also opened our eyes to see how he blesses the members of his body in other parts of the world.

Our group consisted of three recent graduates from Luther Preparatory School in Watertown, Wisconsin, and a pastor from Racine, Wisconsin. We led a VBS for more than 30 eager kids and teenagers from Ivanivka and a few nearby villages. While the language barrier was frustrating at times, teaching Bible lessons through a translator accomplished exactly what God promised: His Word will not return to him empty in any language.

We could tell many stories about VBS failures and victories, cute and troublesome kids, outhouses, spider hunting, uncomfortable car rides, Soviet-era missiles, goats, turkeys, roosters, and so on. The more lasting story, however, is the story of God's grace, that through a tumultuous history he has preserved his Church in this small Ukrainian village. Worshiping on two Sundays in the small Ivanivka church (fewer than 15 people) provided a little glimpse of heaven—saints from different nations, tribes, people, and languages, standing before the Lamb and washed white in his blood. We will be joined with them again someday. And if we had any role in one of those 30+ kids being added to the great multitude in white robes, then that is the only story that matters.

most was that it showed me that we can plan our lives all we want, but in the end God knows best, God has a plan, and God puts everything in our lives for a reason, even if we don't know what that reason is right away.

I'm not sure how much you know about me, but I was born in Japan. I lived there until my family moved to Ohio when I was 13. My parents were missionaries there for 20 years. The world's a lot bigger than we realize sometimes. I know this because of my childhood; but my experience in Ukraine has made such an impact on me, I'm convinced I won't be the same because of it.

Vacation Bible School is Not Just For Kids

Bible study in the summer is not just for kids. In Eastern Europe, volunteers give of their summer time to also teach adults.

St. Sophia Seminary in Ukraine offered its fifth annual Summer Quarter for pastors and theological students the last two weeks of June. Students came to study from five countries: Bulgaria, Norway, Belarus, The Transdnstrian Republic/Moldova, and Ukraine. President Paul Wendland of Wisconsin Lutheran Seminary and Pastor Andriy Honcharuk of the Ukrainian Lutheran Church served as teachers.

The fact that pastors must now find secular employment to support their families caused this year's enrollment to be the lowest yet. Some who attended had to take time off from their secular jobs. However, twelve men attended classes over the two weeks, nine pastors and three seminary students.

As part of St. Sophia's service to sister churches in Eastern Europe, our rector spent the last two weeks of August in Albania. Two men carry out the work of the Albanian Lutheran Church in the absence of any American missionaries or national pastors. These two meet each summer for two or three weeks of seminary-level study to prepare them for the day they can be ordained as full pastors. Their studies continue with weekly Internet classes throughout the year. Both of their wives also attend the classes and assist as translators.

To help pastors improve their skills in hope of finding a decent secular job, the ELS Board for World Outreach offers educational grants. So far, three Ukrainian pastors have taken the offer and are studying at secular schools. While no one thinks bi-vocational pastors are good for the growth and stability of the church, it seems there is no other alternative at present. To their credit, so far all the Ukrainian pastors have continued to serve their congregations in spite of this new hardship.

Bible study for adults isn't limited to summer. That's for sure. On August 22, St. Sophia Seminary opened its doors for another year of preparing new pastors. This year, four students are enrolled in the seminary-level. All four are in the second year of the theological level's three-year curriculum.

All the above activities rely on the generous support of our American sponsors. We give our sincere thanks to all and assure you that your help is very much appreciated by those who are able to take advantage of it. This year's Summer Quarter was supported in part by the mission offering of the students of Wisconsin Lutheran Seminary. We pray that the Lord will move others to offer generous support so that we will be able to hold Summer Quarter in 2012.

God's Unexpected Gift

We receive many gifts during a lifetime, many of which we have grown to expect, but some are totally unexpected. God provides all of these gifts, none of which we deserve and some we do not understand. He provides many when we least expect them. Our trip to Ukraine to teach Vacation Bible School (VBS) was one such gift. The journey was filled with many expected gifts, but the Lord also provided one final gift that was in no way anticipated and will bring joy to us for the rest of our lives.

The story begins when Mary and I were asked to join the group headed to Ukraine to teach VBS. You can already imagine the gifts we were expecting from the Lord as we traveled over a two day period to our final teaching destination of Ivano-Frankivks in western Ukraine. First, there was the challenge of teaching God's Word in a country where we did not speak or understand any of the language. Next, there was the opportunity to enjoy a foreign culture. Finally, there was the gift of seeing the Holy Spirit work in the hearts of the children and families that participated in VBS. We enjoyed all of these gifts and much more as we spent time interacting with our host family and other new friends during our stay.

Our experiences included two train rides across Ukraine accompanied by escorts who spoke very little English. It was quite an adventure as we transitioned from a long plane ride to riding on buses, walking, catching the subway, hopping on the correct train, and finally finding Pastor Romanuic, who delivered us by car to our congregation. It was an unforgettable experience but was made much easier knowing the Lord was guiding us every step of the way. The return trip was no less spirited, but then at least we knew what to expect. While in Ivano-Frankivsk, we were guests in the home of Pastor Romanuic, who was also my translator for VBS. Mary and I taught 30-35 students each day. She had 10-12 younger students, ages 4-8, and I had 19-23 students, ages 9-14. It was rewarding to watch each child's faith grow as they listened to God's Word, participated in VBS activities, and sang praises to the Lord. Not only were we accepted in the classroom, we were welcomed into their homes as part of their families. Pastor and his family made sure not a minute of our time was wasted. We spent every waking moment directly working on VBS or sampling all that this area of Ukraine has to offer. By the end of VBS, we were truly amazed at the work of the Holy Spirit as these students and families proclaimed their love for God, knowing they are saved through God's grace and unconditional love.

It was very difficult to leave these new friends. Language and customs were no longer a problem as God's Word had removed all barriers. The closing ceremony included a children's concert where all of the children sang, along with a number of performances by individual students and parents that glorified God through music and song. Much of the music was played on traditional Ukrainian instruments. The event was so emotional that I could barely express my appreciation to the families that had made this VBS a success. Luckily, Mary was able to step forward and let them know how close we had become as brothers and sisters in God's family. We thank the Lord and Thoughts of Faith for providing us the

Earlier I mentioned one very unexpected gift from God. We have been blessed with three wonderful grandchildren, all boys. We hoped that someday the Lord would add a granddaughter to our family's blessings. That blessing arrived while we were in Ukraine, but not in the expected way. Our host's young daughter became very close to us while we shared their home for 8 days. When we were about to leave, she asked us if we would be her United States grandparents. I believe there are few blessings that compare to the wonderful joy of being a grandparent. There is unconditional love between grandparents and grandchildren that can only compare to the love that Christ has for all of us. Mary and I took suitcases full of VBS materials and other gifts to benefit this special congregation in Ukraine. Our suitcases were emptier but our hearts were filled with all the blessings God had given us. The greatest was the gift of a new granddaughter. Mary and I will be forever connected to Ukraine, both through the sharing of God's Word and love for a special young lady.

A Triple Pleasure

“Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them, for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these”
Mark 10:14

Summer is a wonderful season to have rest. Time off in conjunction with learning something new and meeting new people is a triple pleasure. Children from the Kremenets area are always looking forward to the beginning of July because this is when USA volunteers come to the old town of Kremenets. This has become a good tradition. Volunteers have been coming here for several years in a row. This year Peter Buschkopf, Rebecca Schulz, Whitney Stibb, Jillian Finseth, Douglas Schulz and Beth Schwartz visited Kremenets.

Volunteers arrived in Kremenets the evening of July 1. They visited our ULC church, Cross of Christ Lutheran, and became familiar with the places where VBS was going to take place. The next day, Saturday, they went on an excursion to the city of Lviv. Since Beth was the only one who visited Kremenets last year, everyone was interested to learn Ukrainian traditions and history and see how Ukrainians live.

After the church service on Sunday, the US volunteers and translators were introduced to the Cross of Christ members. Starting on Monday and every single morning through Saturday, little children, teenagers and youth were in a hurry to get to our church on time, where at 9:00 the lessons started. Every day about 140 children came. They had the following lessons: Bible study, Art, English and music. Children were divided into four groups according to age. At the end of every day children brought home artwork which they made themselves, and what is more important— they were taking home new information about Jesus Christ while learning the Bible better.

On the fourth of July, America’s Independence Day, volunteers and their helpers shared a big cake which was a real work of art. A Ukrainian baker— I mean, artist—put the American and the Ukrainian national emblems on a “sweet towel” as a symbol of friendship between the two countries.

The American and the Ukrainian national emblems decorate a “sweet towel” .

Time flew very quickly. On the next Sunday, we had to say good-bye to our American friends, but not before the ULC participants of VBS showed what they learned after the church service. It seemed like that week was too short. Parents could not believe their children learned so many songs in Ukrainian and English which glorify our God during such a short period of time. Every group of children, together with the US volunteers, sang different songs. Then the volunteers and their Ukrainian translators sang songs. How joyful and yet solemn it was! At the end, all participants of VBS and the congregation members sang the Hospody Pomylui (Lord, have mercy on us).

With tears of sadness and some of gratitude, joy and happiness, the children said good-bye to their new teacher friends from the USA. Parents were very thankful to the organizers of VBS and to the volunteers for their work, care and input for Ukrainian children.

SEE YOU NEXT YEAR, VBS!

News and Notes

Thanks to Pam Schultz for her years as Thoughts of Faith administrative assistant. Her recent assignments have included organizing the newsletter and the ToF VBS program in Ukraine. We also thank Cliff Behnke, who has edited our newsletter in recent years. We welcome Jessica Fries as editor!

Thanks to Rev. Harold and Jeanne Schewe, who are serving as volunteer English teachers at Martin Luther School in Plzen, Czech Republic during September through November.

May we remind readers about the Ukrainian Lutheran Church humanitarian aid fund? This fund provides medical and other social assistance to members and pastors of the ULC. For example, one ULC pastor’s wife is undergoing cancer treatment at present and the fund helps pay for expensive injections. Gifts may be directed through Thoughts of Faith, 6 Browns Ct., Mankato, MN 56001.

Thanks to all VBS volunteers and coordinators!

Delegates to the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod convention gathered a generous offering for the Ukrainian Lutheran Church this summer. Many thanks!

2012 Ukraine Vacation Bible School Plans: Thoughts of Faith hopes to recruit volunteer VBS teachers from among ELS and WELS college students for the Summer 2012 VBS session. Older volunteers are also welcome to assist or to support the program with financial contributions to offset the expense for these students. Interested? Contact Rev. Steve Petersen at Thoughts of Faith or at spp@blc.edu.

The Hard Truth and Big Glory

Once being outstanding in education, teaching and outreach, the Confessional Lutheran Church of Latvia has experienced a setback in recent years. Its educational tool, the Augsburg Institute (AI), had more than fifty students in its Catechism and Biblical language classes some years ago. More than ten teachers were trained in the Sunday school program, and there were lots of attendants in a broader educational program. The staff of AI was busy translating books, lecturing, and publishing a newspaper, Latvijas Luteranis (Latvian Lutheran), which was delivered to a broad spectrum of readers, even Roman Catholics, liberals and secular people. Its message was theologically sound, but at the same time challenging and provoking readers to rethink their intellectual position and abandon prejudices against confessional Lutheranism. Great contributions were brought to Latvian Lutheranism through guest lecturers from Lutherans of our fellowship in the US. Last but not the least, pastors of the Latvian Confessional Lutheran Church had a place to gather at the Institute, share their experience and find encouragement and other support. The Confessional Lutheran Church was strengthened and more than doubled as the result of AI activities. It was the time of big hopes and expectations. Of course, the Devil was not pleased with it at all, as one can imagine. He worked hard from inside and outside. The financial downturn of the US economy resulted in reduced support from US donors. The headquarters of AI, once filled with joyful confessional Christians, were bare and empty. Having lack of financial recourses, the AI board had to dissolve the institute.

Some years have passed since then. There is no public voice of confessional Lutherans being heard in Latvia anymore, to the great joy of Roman Catholics and liberal and pro-Catholic Lutherans. All pastors of the Confessional Lutheran Church have to fight for their daily bread, barely able to fulfill their regular pastoral duties. They meet very seldom, don't study or write theological articles and books. Educational work in our church has been almost stopped and the numbers of church members are decreasing. At the same time, we don't feel lost and abandoned. Our dear brothers and sisters from ELS and WELS have stood with us, supporting us and encouraging, helping with prayers and financial support.

The Devil might roar and frighten us, there can be tough times, but the night will not last forever. The day of our Lord is coming! The Lord kills and He makes alive. He honors our dying because as servants we die together with Him. In this way, the man who hates his own life in this world and lives a new life together with Christ will keep his life in eternity. It is because there is no life apart from Christ, "for in Him we live and move and have our being" (Acts 17:28).

Luther, in his exposition on the appendix to the First Commandment, said:

"But, alas! Here is the failure, that the world believes nothing of this, nor regards it as God's Word, because it sees that those who trust in God and not in Mammon suffer care and want, and the devil opposes and resists them, that they have neither money, favor, nor honor, and, besides, can scarcely support life; while on the other hand, those who serve Mammon have power, favor, honor, possessions, and every comfort in the eyes of the world. For this reason, these words must be grasped as being directed against such appearances; and we must consider that they do not lie or deceive, but must come true."

In this way, Doctor Luther points our attention to the great fact that the real is not what we see and touch, but what we believe on the basis of God's Word.

It is very difficult for us human beings to grasp that to love this life means to lose it. We simply hate such thoughts. It is no easier to believe that what seems like real glory for the world is just an appearance. It is because we have constantly been taught by the world, flesh, and Satan that we need a better way than that given by the Lord. This unholy trinity encourages us to throw ourselves into the work of making the world a better place. This it calls true realism. What's real is only what is right there in front of us – power and bread. All the rest is illusion. If the church wants to be useful for something, it has to take part in this great task of improving this world. But it can be done only by big churches. Isn't that the reason why big churches are loved? The small ones can only confess their faith and suffer, but they cannot improve the world, they cannot have influence, and therefore they have value only in the eyes of the Lord. Only the Lord busies himself with counting the tears of the few and scattered ones; only the Lord thinks that dying gives life. The world believes in power and influence. Such thinking was present even in the minds of the apostles in their day. While the Lord wept over the Temple, they marveled how great it was. While the Lord spoke of dying, they were busy calculating which of them is greater and what positions they would receive in the new kingdom of Jesus.

Dear brothers and sisters, in these tough times the Lord gives us encouragement for dying and living. What kind of dying is it? It is dying to false trust in power, money, numbers, success, and everything that is big for the world – in short, all that is flesh has to die. Then living comes. What kind of strange living is it? It is living in Christ, living in the preached Word, living in the word and water of Holy Baptism, living in the word of Holy Absolution, living from and together with the Lord's flesh and blood of His Sacrament. Therefore, we have not lost our faithfulness and good spirit, even if we will have to look for a better place than this world to study.

VBS 2011 in Kharkiv

This year, VBS was blessed by Jamie Hering, Miriam Hanson and Sarah Janke Dolan. The Ukrainian volunteer was Nadiya Borsch, a 17-year-old member of our congregation. Thanks to the good preparation at the college, the girls were very good at witnessing about the Savior during the devotions and Bible classes, craft classes, and singing Christian songs. They were especially creative during Bible classes at dramatizing Bible stories. The Ukrainians were so surprised when one volunteer said: "I do that naturally. That's how my mother taught me. I just imitate my mom."

Our congregation is very interested in VBS. VBS classes take place in such a season when faithful people are tempted not to come to the service regularly. Thanks to VBS, the beginning of July becomes the third most important time of the year for the Lutherans in Kharkiv (after Christmas and Easter). The arrival of the volunteers is always a good opportunity to invite guests to the service. This year, our worship service was visited by a famous Ukrainian writer, Stepan Sapelak, who is the winner of Shevchenko award, the biggest one in Ukraine, similar to the Pulitzer. In addition, Eugene Marchak, who is the soloist of Kharkiv national opera, his wife Oksana (soprano), and an ensemble of ancient music attended. After the worship service, the musicians greeted the guests and sang ancient liturgy and Ukrainian songs.

Every day in Kharkiv was special for the volunteers. They celebrated Independence Day, visited a Bible group in Tyshky, which is close to Kharkiv, and took excursions in Kharkiv, such as visiting the palace in Sharivtsy village that belonged to a rich German sugar refiner.

After VBS on Saturday, the volunteers, together with Professor John Vogt, his wife Sandy and Pamela Shultz, who were responsible for VBS of 2011 in Ukraine, and the pastor of the congregation visited an orphanage for kids with central nervous system problems and whose parents have AIDs. The guests brought sweets for the older kids, diapers for the small ones and Christian children's books. They also spoke with them. The ULC congregation in Kharkiv cooperates with the Ukrainian Bible Society, which brings the children footwear (they need them very much), literature, donates for Christian literature and prays for the day when the project, "Every orphan gets a toy and an MP3 player with a Children's Bible and songs," is realized.

VBS: A Very Blessed Season for the Czech Church

For the first time in her history, the Czech Lutheran Church helped organize a Vacation Bible School for children, which was completely operated in the English language. True, one of the past summers St. Peter's in Tlucna prepared a three-day long summer camp for children in the Czech language. But this year has brought the dawn of a new tradition for the Lord's church around the Plzen area. Make no mistake, American English remains a huge attraction for both strangers and the people already connected to our church, such as the children and parents of our Martin Luther School.

In the fall of 2010, a young and devoted Christian missionary and adventuress named Jennifer Petersen volunteered to come for three months and work for the Lord via our school and church projects. When she was leaving in December that year, she conceived the idea of a summer VBS. In the following weeks and months spent in the US, she was able to put together a team of five Christians who were all eager to come for a week in mid-summer and prepare activities for children to help them "know Jesus and know Him better."

The group of leaders was truly versatile. It included Ed Kasper, a bearded middle-aged man with an affection for nature. He worked with the children on stone carving and T-shirt painting projects (see the pictures). Claire Natsis, a young lady with a wonderful voice and musical capabilities, devoted her time with the kids to singing children's praises and practicing "physical exercise songs," those songs where you stand up and sit down, move your hands in the air, etc. Jonathan Niemi, a young guitar-player and sportsman taught the Czech children many new ball games, such as Speedball, Lightning, etc. Clara Mae Nettesheim, a "grandma" in the team who, together with Jenni, read some selected stories from Jesus' life to the children and assisted anywhere the need arose.

The week-long VBS took place in the music room and the gym of our Martin Luther School in Plzen and the common theme running through all the activities was "Fishing." It has brought happiness to the heart of this writer to hear, "I will make you fishers of men, if you come and follow me," sung by the group of fifteen children in attendance. It was also a very diverse band. The youngest was a 7-year old boy, Adam; the oldest a 16-year old girl, Krystina. But all of them were full of vim and vigor: Vicky (8), Ben (13), Jero (10), Katy (10), Lucy (10), Kate (11), Misha (9), Eva (14), Ivana (14), Magda (11), Luky (10), Ondra (9) and Karolina (12). These children, each very different, learned one message that was true for each of them, no matter whether it was presented to them in English or in Czech: that many years ago, Jesus came from God, paid with His innocent blood to buy us back to our Father, and to share Himself with us as His children forever. With this in mind, He also calls us and engages us to be "fishers of men," to help save other straying sinners by bringing them the good news of Jesus.

For He alone is and will for eternity be our Life. Him alone we ask to bless next year's summer VBS in the Czech Republic as much as He did this first one. We are confident that He desires to do it. Will He find members of His body who would assist, support, encourage and do the work by His grace, in His name and for His glory?
